Terri McCormick: First Candidate on the Ballot in WI-8-CD

Thank You to Our Many Supporters!

YOU, the voters of Wisconsin's Eighth Congressional District, have placed Terri McCormick on the ballot.

Having received this honor Tuesday afternoon, Terri McCormick is the first candidate in Wisconsin's Eighth Congressional District race to be placed on the ballot.

"It is time for the people to decide who best represents them and who will provide the leadership necessary to address the economic crisis, national debt and security issues that face the United States," stated McCormick.

Voters from all over the Eighth Congressional District provided signatures showing their support for Terri McCormick. One thousand signatures are needed in order to get on the ballot, a requirement that the McCormick Campaign easily met and surpassed. While submitting the nomination forms, Dave Bowers, Grassroots Coordinator for the Terri McCormick Campaign for Congress reflected on the importance of the nomination process. "The outpouring of support found while collecting signatures speaks volumes for the confidence voters have placed in Terri McCormick."

The McCormick Campaign would like to thank all those that helped to place Terri on the ballot. Through collecting signatures and informing people about Terri's campaign our neighbors in Wisconsin's Eighth Congressional District have moved Terri one step closer to bringing our government back to "We the People."

Steve Kagen Switches Vote on Transparency for the Federal Reserve – Terri McCormick Supports Auditing the Federal Reserve

Congressman Steve Kagen was previously on the record in support of HR 1207, a bill to give the Government Accountability Office (GAO) the authority to audit the Federal Reserve to obtain precise details about Fed activities. While there is a system of checks and balances for most branches of the government, the Fed remains untouched and unexamined.

But in a vote on June 30, Kagen shifted and voted with 228 other Democrats to oppose an audit of the Federal Reserve (source: <http://clerk.house.gov/evs/2010/roll412.xml>). The bill, authored by Congressman Ron Paul of Texas, received bipartisan support earlier in the year, with 320 members of Congress co-sponsoring it -- including Steve Kagen.

Twenty-three Democrats crossed over to vote with the Republicans to audit the Fed, which was included in a bill to fix previously passed and unpopular derivatives measures. Despite overwhelming support from the public, Kagen switched to oppose audit of the Federal Reserve.

Republican candidate for Congress Terri McCormick criticized Kagen's vote switch: "I want to go to Congress to audit the Federal Reserve and to audit other agencies that are not being good stewards of hard-earned taxpayer dollars," said McCormick. "Why did Congressman Kagen support the Audit the Fed bill and then vote against auditing the Fed? Was it simply to put his party ahead of northeast Wisconsin voters?" asked McCormick.

"If elected to Congress, I will work to make our government fully accountable. I have a record of achievement and reform to back up my promises," she concluded.

McCormick Campaign In Fourth of July Parades Throughout the District

The holiday weekend was filled with patriotism and celebration. The McCormick Campaign traveled throughout the district to join in the many Independence Day celebrations and parades. With the help of volunteers and supporters the McCormick Campaign was able to reach thousands of parade attendees.

"Independence Day celebrations throughout the Eighth District were filled with energy and excitement," stated McCormick. "I enjoyed the opportunity to take part in many community events and witness the true spirit our great nation."

The McCormick Campaign would like to thank all those who participated in the many Fourth of July festivities. Special thanks to our many volunteers and members of the Rolling Thunder who made our presence in the parades memorable.

McCormick Campaign Celebrates Fourth of July Weekend

The McCormick Campaign was delighted to host two family-oriented events this past Fourth of July weekend. Hundreds of concerned citizens took the opportunity to meet with Terri McCormick and discuss the issues facing our nation and our communities in Wisconsin's Eighth Congressional District.

Those traveling to Manawa and Marinette were able to join the McCormick Campaign and enjoy fun-filled afternoons. Both events were free and open to all registered voters and their families. After enjoying the Manawa Mid-Western Rodeo many individuals and families made their way to the McCormick BBQ. Broadcasted live by Frog Country WJMQ, the McCormick BBQ was a perfect way to kick start the holiday weekend.

Those traveling North to Marinette were able to enjoy a delicious picnic and join in conversation with the McCormick Campaign. Music, food, door prizes and great company made this event a huge success.
